

Aaron Morehouse joins the Climate Safe Lending Network as James Vaccaro becomes the Chief Catalyst

September 2023

Climate Safe Lending Network (CSLN) is delighted to announce the appointment of Aaron Morehouse, PhD as its new Executive Director. Aaron brings over 20 years of experience building and growing social and environmental impact organisations. He has led programs in 40 countries and worked with JP Morgan Chase, UBS, MacArthur Foundation, Boeing, Cisco, Google, and many other institutions on philanthropic initiatives to address critical global issues of social justice and sustainability.

“I am thrilled to join CSLN at this critical juncture,” said Aaron. “The need for climate safe lending is more urgent than ever, and I am committed to working with our members and partners to accelerate the transition to a clean energy economy. I am confident that CSLN can play a leading role in this transformation.”

Aaron's previous experience includes serving as Managing Director for Brimstone Consulting where he partnered with corporate and nonprofit leaders to drive transformation and change in their organizations while amplifying impact in a rapidly changing and increasingly complex world. Aaron also previously served as Executive Director of The Experiment in International Living, Vice President for Innovation and Advancement at World Learning, Executive Director at The Columbia Gorge Ecology Institute, and Director of Programs for the Catalina Island Conservancy. He has a doctorate in Education and Sustainability from Prescott College.

"Aaron is a highly experienced and accomplished leader with a deep understanding of the challenges and opportunities facing the climate finance sector," said James Vaccaro, Chief Catalyst at CSLN. "He is the ideal person to lead CSLN as we work to build a more climate safe financial system."

James remains steadfastly committed to CSLN in transitioning to a senior advisory role focusing on network strategy and thought leadership.
